HOMELESS AND SICK Golf Savings Bank Helps House AIDS Patients

Vulnerable adults with HIV/AIDS, mental illness, and AIDS dementia live on the streets of Seattle. With no stability, no safe place to store their things, and no refrigerators, they can't stay on the AIDS drug regimen.

Golf Savings Bank has partnered with Rosehedge to get people off the streets and into safe housing.

"Golf is happy to have the opportunity to help further Rosehedge's mission of providing quality housing and medical attention to some of our community's most vulnerable members who may not otherwise have the resources to obtain these services," said Chuck Farr, Compliance Manager. "Golf has always been committed to the betterment of the communities in which it serves, and that commitment is stronger today than ever before. We appreciate Rosehedge and its contributions to our community, and we are excited to be able to help support such a worthwhile community development organization."

Rosehedge is an assisted-living program for men and women with HIV/AIDS who also live with mental illness, substance dependency, and dementia. Residents get their own rooms, nutritious meals, and the help they need to stay on their meds and get treatment for their other issues.

With a 20-year history, Rosehedge has the expertise to care for people with complicated psycho-social problems as well as HIV/AIDS.

"We are so grateful to Golf Savings Bank for their help," said Chris Marx, Executive Director. "We couldn't do this important work without the support of caring partners like Golf."

More information about Rosehedge can be found on their web site: www.rosehedge.org.
